

A member of the Shoshone-Baddock tribe, LaNada War Jack was the first Native American student at the University of California, Berkeley when she enrolled in 1968 at 21. The next year, LaNada used her freedom of assembly to organize the Occupation of Alcatraz, a peaceful protest hoping to reclaim the island "in the name of all American Indians." LaNada was one of the very few who stayed on the island for the entire 19-month occupation.
